“ Where do I begin... about 75% of every memory i have has you in it. I never realized how great of a father you truly were until becoming a mother myself but you loved me in a way i was unable to comprehend until then. I am forever grateful for every single second i was lucky enough to spend with you, rather fighting, laughing or talking about things Daddy's teach their baby girls . There isn't a day that goes by that y heart doesn't physically hurt because of the emptiness you left. I just like most people have the ability to realize much less accept that someone who has been your side since you first breath could possibly not be there when you wake up tomorrow . You wouldn't ever hear their laugh or see the person who seemed like they'd never leave your side.. gone forever. its been over two years and i still have to remind myself daily that i cant call you or that my daughter is so much like you and cries for you out of no where , they make me tell them funny stories about growing up with you and i do of course bc you shaped me and in a way shaped them . We love you always and miss you every day .
