“ I met Deb about 30 years ago online. We met in a game called Chattitude. We were almost in that game 24/7. It was one of the best games on AOL. Yeah, Remember AOL? We just hit it off, and our sense of humor was almost like we were twins. I spent almost every free minute of my day talking to her either in the game or through messenger. My family called her my imaginary friend because I would talk about her all the time, but we lived in different states and would most likely never meet. One time I loaned her money, and she was having a hard time paying me back, so she said I could go to Judge Judy and sue her and that way, we could meet. Lol. That was too funny. Needless to say I never sued her. But her idea was just too funny. In those years I considered her my best friend and to this day I miss her dearly. I really wish we would have kept in touch.
My thoughts, Love, and Prayers go out to her family. She will truly be missed.

Mommy always talked about you as well. We referred to you as her imaginary friend too... She talked about you all the time.
