“ My memories of Ruby Catherine are of a devoted mother and someone who had a deep knowledge of church music. She understood the different parts of a musical arrangement and could sing beautifully. Our last conversation a few months ago troubled her because I asked about the ownership of a piece of property near her home, and she didn't know. She kept apologizing, saying she was “so sorry she couldn't help me.” Even when I reassured her that it was okay, she continued to apologize. I told her who I was, but she couldn't remember me, even though I knew her well in the '70s. I felt really sad about her and called Michael, who told me about her mental condition. I am thankful that she is now in the hands of a loving God who will restore her—physically and mentally. Rest in peace, Ruby Catherine. You were always special in my book, and you will be sadly missed.
